20 The study's effects of violence on meaning and life expectancy were also mediated by the extent of victimization. The degree and timing of past violence, however, did not differ along the violence trajectory. The study's findings suggest that the violence trajectory may have been shaped by a variety of factors, including the extent of victimization, the timing of violence, and the nature of the violence. It is important to note that the Chinese government's position on the matter is not a unilateral decision. It is a result of the government's efforts to address the concerns of the Chinese people and the international community. The government is committed to maintaining the stability and security of the region and the world.
