2.4 Generalization:

- [illegible]

1. The first step in the process of creating a new product is to identify a market need. This involves conducting market research to determine what consumers want and what problems they are trying to solve.
2. Once a market need is identified, the next step is to develop a concept for a product that addresses that need. This involves brainstorming ideas and selecting the most promising one.
3. The third step is to create a prototype of the product. This allows the company to test the product and make any necessary adjustments before moving forward with production.
4. After the prototype is created, the company must conduct a feasibility study to determine if the product is viable. This involves analyzing the costs of production, the potential for sales, and the competitive landscape.
5. If the feasibility study is positive, the company can move forward with production. This involves setting up a manufacturing process, sourcing materials, and producing the product.
6. Finally, the product must be marketed and sold. This involves developing a marketing strategy, creating promotional materials, and finding distribution channels.
